

Abstract

This invention is directed to a rapid and simple method for determining organisms and/or cells in a sample. Generally, the method is directed to the use of molecular probes to selectively stain the organisms and/or cells for determination 5 wherein growth medium, fixative reagents and/or excess molecular probes need not be separated before a determination is made.